

11.7 Category Codes

Because information is classified subjectively, the definition whether or not to classify POI information data is classified by the service type, is not made herein.

A classification table (a list of classification labels and category codes) is, however, provided separately. This table is intended to be used commonly by all companies, regardless of the data medium in use, so that common codes are used when they exchange and distribute information.

The category codes are used as keys to mark POI information.

For the detail of category codes, see Chapter 32.